TORGIANO

In Torgiano, the heart and soul of the Group, our staff welcomes you at the Winery, at the starting point for guided tours (*) of the facilities for vinification up to the maturation in casks and the bottle aging cellar. After the tour, in the Wine shop – or at Osteria del Museo, in the centre of Torgiano – tasting with information provided by professional sommeliers on the wines, grappas and extra virgin olive oil.

The visit is more complete if it also includes the well-cared-for vineyards on rolling hills that demonstrate our "ecofriendly" cultivation techniques and the biomass furnace where we have begun to produce our energy from the vine-pruning residues, the first biomass project of this type in Europe.

MONTEFALCO

In Turrita di Montefalco the winery is housed in a villa with 17th-century architecture and a 360° view of the countryside, surrounded by vineyards. A little jewel of logistics in the technical aspects, where grape loading and vinification are conveyed using gravity. Attention for the environment that is so strong in Torgiano with the production of renewable energy from vineyard pruning residues is translated here in Turrita with the use of biodynamic agriculture in the estate's 20 hectares of vines. Elegant and welcoming reception rooms emphasize the convivial nature of wine.

CONVIVIALITY

Beyond knowledge is the aspect of conviviality in enjoying wine.

In Torgiano, the wide portico with its cotto roof has the perfect ambience to complete a visit with brunches, lunches, dinners, aperitifs or breaks following business meetings, but also fun-filled bachelor/bachelorette parties. In season and for small groups, picnics in the vineyards for experiencing the territory with all five senses and creating a bond between territory and cuisine: a setting of hills and colours that only Umbria can offer. Traditional scents and flavours, wines, extra virgin olive oil, the music of nature and linens from Umbria's rich textile traditions, all make for unforgettable memories.

At the Montefalco winery the large ballroom and the tasting room overlooking the vineyards are ideal venues for meetings and conferences and an elegant setting for dances, concerts and banquets.

WINE MUSEUM

A visit to the Wine Museum, that has few rivals in the world in terms of number and quality of works on display, covers twenty rooms of exhibits in the Palazzo Graziiani-Baglioni.

The narrative thread guiding the visitor among archeological finds, works of art and technical equipment for viticulture and vinification is the mysterious fascination of the ancient Dionysian culture and the complex system of symbolism and meanings that wine has held through 5000 years of history. The thematic collections are veritable "museums within the museum" and range from ceramics of the Medieval, Renaissance, Baroque and contemporary periods, as well as collections of antique books, wafer irons, antique engravings, to contemporary sculptures that explore the myth of Dionysus and the occasions for enjoying wine. A section dedicated to the use of wine in medicine explores the healthy properties of wine that were already known in antiquity and are now confirmed by science. Multimedia stations provide detailed didactic insights.

OLIVE AND OIL MUSEUM

The story narrated in the Olive and Oil Museum revolves around Athena, the Greek goddess who, according to myth, bestowed the olive tree to mankind. An ancient plant and the major symbol of Mediterranean culture, the olive tree and the oil extracted from its fruit are the subject of a ten-room museum that is both unique and fascinating.

Through artistic, archeological and ethnographic collections, one can also discover uses and traditions, at times ancient, curious or little-known: used for divinatory and therapeutic practices, olive oil – whose traditions have bestowed symbolic values since antiquity – had been used for centuries in both folk and official medicine due to its emollient and soothing properties or as a base in producing ointments and creams; an indispensable component in cosmetics, effective protection for the body during athletic activity, it has been also used in mechanics and in weaving, in sigillography and statuary. An alternative source of thermal energy that has recently been rediscovered, it is the ingredient par excellence of the Mediterranean diet and has been a precious source of light for centuries.
